Overview

Keeping your personal information up to date helps ensure that HR records, employee communications, payroll, benefits, and other employee services remain accurate.

You can review and update eligible personal information through the Employee Self-Service portal.

What You Can Update

Depending on your organization and access permissions, you may be able to update:

- Personal phone number
- Personal email address
- Home or mailing address
- Emergency contact information
- Preferred name or other profile details

Some information may require supporting documentation or HR approval before the change is completed.

How to Update Your Information

1. Open Employee Self-Service

Sign in to the Employee Self-Service portal using your corporate credentials.

2. Open Your Profile

Select your Profile or Personal Information section.

3. Review Your Details

Check the information currently displayed and identify the details that need to be changed.

4. Make the Changes

Select Edit, update the required information, and review the changes carefully.

5. Submit the Update

Select Save or Submit to complete the request.

If approval or documentation is required, follow the additional instructions displayed in the portal.

Before You Submit

Make sure that:

- Your information is accurate and complete.
- Phone numbers and email addresses are entered correctly.

- Your address follows the required format.
- Any required supporting documents are attached.
- You review all changes before submitting.

What Happens After Submission?

Most updates are reflected after the system processes the change.

For changes that require HR review or approval, the request may remain pending until the appropriate team completes the review.

You can check the status of submitted requests through the Employee Self-Service portal, where available.

Need Help?

If you cannot update your information or the required option is unavailable:

1. Check the relevant HR Knowledge articles in the Employee Self-Service portal.
2. Search for an existing HR service or request.
3. Contact your local HR or Employee Services team if further assistance is required.

When raising a request, include a brief description of the issue and the information you are trying to update. Do not include sensitive personal information unless specifically requested through an approved HR process.

KNOWLEDGE QUALITY CHECK

Findability

Uses employee-friendly terms such as personal information, profile, address, phone number, and email to improve search relevance.

Usability

Provides a short, numbered process that employees can follow without HR assistance.

Consistency

Uses standardized headings, terminology, metadata, ownership, and lifecycle information.

Governance

Defines an owner, SME, review frequency, version, and lifecycle stages.

Self-Service

Directs employees toward resolution before creating an HR case, supporting improved case deflection and employee experience.

AI & Search Readiness

Uses clear headings, structured steps, concise language, and explicit keywords so the content can be effectively surfaced through enterprise search, chatbots, virtual agents, and AI/RAG-based knowledge experiences.

PORTFOLIO NOTE

What this demonstrates

This sample demonstrates my approach to creating employee-facing HR knowledge that is structured, searchable, governed, and designed for self-service.

I focus not only on writing the article, but also on the surrounding knowledge-management framework — including audience, taxonomy, metadata, ownership, review cycles, content lifecycle, search intent, and AI readiness.
